Hope Needs That Airport Now
"Escape," a Great Motion Picture

Proof that it is high time Hope got busy and pushed to completion its long-standing plans for a municipal airport is contained in a report here on my desk from the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America showing that production of light planes—the kind the average civilian flier buys—will be two and a half times greater this year than in 1939, which likewise had a gain over 1938. Light planes are bringing aviation home to the average American, and cities without modern airports today will miss this new traffic just as the states without modern highways missed the automobile business of yesterday.

by Mayor
W. S. Atkins

Mayor W. S. Atkins announced Monday that Sweeney Copeland, chief of the city police force for the past two years, resigned Sunday night and accepted a position with the state police department.

In making the announcement Mayor Atkins stated that J. W. (Son) Jones had been appointed police chief, taking charge Monday. Jones has been connected with the police department for the past three years. D. C. Whitley has been added temporarily to the force, filling the vacancy left by Copeland.

Copeland reported to the local state police sergeant, F. V. Haynie, Monday for duty. As yet he has not been assigned to any particular section. Copeland resigned as state police patrolman two years ago to head the local department.

Red Cross to Ship FoodPlans Made to Send Ships to Spain, France

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The American Red Cross has made tentative arrangements to send food ships to the hungry in Europe—one to Spain and the other to unoccupied France—it was learned authoritatively Monday.

Actual departure of the ships depends on negotiations between the United States and the British governments, with prospects considered good.

While unwilling to exert pressure on Britain for lifting of the blockade the State Department is seeking permission for an American ship to proceed to Marseilles with a cargo of condensed milk and concentrated vitamin products for undernourished in unoccupied France.

The British government has ruled out any shipments of food to countries occupied or dominated by Germany.

CRANIUM
CRACKERS

Organized labor in the United States recently held their conventions. Here are five questions dealing with these organizations.

1. Who is the new president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations?

2. The new president of the C. I. O. and his predecessor both rose through the ranks of the same union. What is it?

3. Who is president of the American Federation of Labor? In what city was its recent convention held?

4. Climax of the differences which led to the formation of the C. I. O. came at an A. F. of L. convention in Atlantic City, same city where the C. I. O. recently met. In what year did the split come?

5. One of the issues discussed at the A. F. of L. convention was that of alleged racketeering among union leaders, and one of the leaders in the discussion is president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Who is he?

Greeks Storm
Italians, Kill
Two OfficersSnow Slows
Down Drive;
Italians Fall Back,
Leave Wounded

ATHENS—(AP)—An Italian general and a colonel were reported killed when the Greeks stormed an important position in the mountains trying desperately to hold.

The Italians were said to have fled leaving many dead.

This was on the southern front where the Greeks are driving toward Valona, one of the three Albanian ports in Italian possessions.

One report said:

"These two senior officers with revolvers in hand induced their men to defend the position. However, both officers were hit and died."

"Their death was the sign for a wholesale retreat and abandonment of the fortified heights."

In a fierce new drive from Pogrand, etc toward Elbasani in central Albania, Greek mountain regiments were reported to have smashed through massed Italian reserves for gains.

Fresh snowstorms in the rugged Albanian mountains slowed down the Greek advance but latest reports told of the capture of important heights and many prisoners, with fighting raging in snow three to four feet deep.

The task of keeping supply roads open became a gigantic problem, but so far Greek transportation is operating efficiently.

Captured Italian prisoners indicated the weather is seriously impeding Fascist supply trains. They were reported as saying hundreds of fellow Italians had fallen out of action because of frost-bite and pneumonia.

The Greeks said many of the prisoners told of going for several days without food and ammunition; so difficult had the going become retreating Italians were said to have abandoned much heavy equipment and their wounded.

Court Review of Bureau Rulings

CHARLESTON, S. C.—(AP)—President Roosevelt left here by special train over the weekend end for Warm Springs, Ga., after completing a 12-day cruise in the Caribbean and the Atlantic aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa.

President Roosevelt gave a clear indication he would veto the Walter-Logan bill providing for court reviews of rulings of quasi-judicial government agencies.

Asked whether he had made up his mind on the legislation, he said he had "pretty well," and that he thought reporters had been guessing pretty accurately what he would do. News dispatches here suggested he would veto the bill. Mr. Roosevelt said he had not received the bill but he thought he had until Wednesday to act on it.

The Arkansas Democrat said the action "gave rise to reports that Senator Willis Smith, Texarkana, would resign as chairman of the joint group and that Sen. W. H. Abington, Beebe, would be named to the post."

The newspaper added that Sen. Smith may be a candidate for president pro tem of the senate.

Committee members said Dr. Abington was en route to the city from his home and would not arrive until later in the day.

Farm Credits
Arranged NowFSA Applications for 1941 Should Be Made Now

Like doing one's Christmas shopping early, there is good reason why farm families expecting to call upon the Farm Security Administration for operating credit during 1941 should do so at this time of the year, said W. M. Sparks, Farm Security Administration Supervisor in Hempstead county.

Mr. Sparks pointed out that a farmer applying now for a loan which he will not need for several months may have it with-held for future delivery on a specified date. Thus, the loan does not begin to bear interest until it is actually used.

"The advantage of applying in the fall is that this is the in-between season when farmers can size up their past year's business and plan for the new year," Mr. Sparks said. "The supervisor, too, has more time in the fall to help the farmers do the long-range planning which is fundamental to our program, and often of more benefit than the loan itself."

"All FSA loans are drawn up on the basis of farm and home management plans, and sometimes the working out of these plans requires considerable time. Every applicant is forced to turn away applicants who apply too late to permit such plans to be drawn up. Many other farmers while approaching us in time to receive the loans, find themselves caught up in spring rush in our office just when they are most pressed for time," further said Mr. Sparks.

Farm Security Administration loans are made to farm operators, whether owners or tenants, who are unable to obtain credit on reasonable terms from other sources. The loans can be made for feed, seed, fertilizer, livestock, equipment and similar operating goods for period of from one to five years, with interest at five per cent.

Peoria Industrialist
Gives Stock to
ReligionBy MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

PEORIA, Ill.—Taking God into full partnership in one's business and giving Him the greater part of the profits—that is the way to real, lasting success, according to the firm belief of R. G. LeTourneau, head of three plants of the machine manufacturing LeTourneau Company of Georgia, Illinois, and California.

There is nothing phony about this. It is all in deadly earnest so far as LeTourneau is concerned. He himself gives religious talks to his workmen. His big bass voice leads in the singing of hymns.

But anybody could do this without cost to himself. Money talks and LeTourneau makes his money talk religion.

To God he has given 67.5 per cent of the 450,000 shares of stock in his companies. This has taken the form of a gift of that amount of stock to the LeTourneau Foundation, with offices in Rockefeller Center, New York City. Valued at more than $13,000,000, the Foundation has a yearly revenue of about $450,000. This money is employed in spreading the Gospel and supporting missions. That's the LeTourneau way of showing his relationship with the Supreme Being.

Heard Evangelist—Then Came Success

As he so seriously mixes religion with his business, LeTourneau's success story differs greatly from most. Born about 32 years ago and reared in California, he never got beyond the eighth grade in school. Forced by poverty to seek work early, he got a job in a foundry. Eventually he opened a small welding shop and garage which he left in charge of a partner when he enlisted in the U. S. Army during the World War.

His business went to pot and he found himself in debt. Paying off his creditors out of wages earned as a mechanic, he bought an old caterpillar tractor, repaired it, and got jobs in irrigation work. He invented an earth scraper and started a small factory in Stockton, Calif. The 1929 crash hit him and he found himself $200,000 in debt.

One night during that troubled period, LeTourneau was sitting at his drawing board, trying to sketch a new machine which he hoped would retrieve his broken fortunes. He heard there was an evangelist in town, pushed aside his work and went to hear him. It was not a case of conversion. LeTourneau had always been an ardent Christian.

In telling of that night, LeTourneau says he truly believes he was inspired by God, because he came back to his drawing board with renewed faith, worked all night and got up from his task in the morning with the completed sketches of the scraper. He pointed these and they brought riches within his grasp. The machine digs up in earth, loads it, carries it, and spreads it where it is wanted.

From that fateful night, LeTourneau has never looked back. His company now owns big plants at Stockton, Calif., Peoria, Ill., and Tecoma, Ga.

LeTourneau not only addresses religious meetings in his factories, but flies around the country in his own plane to conduct religious services.

In a recent address to his men, he said:

"The idea of service to God in business is not a bargain with the Lord. It pays to serve the Lord, but not to serve the Lord because it pays."

Justifies Shell Order

Recently he got a government contract for making $6,000,000 worth of shells. Some people have asked how he could thus take active part in the rearmament program. To this LeTourneau replied:

"When Christ found the racketeers despoiling His Father's house, He made a whip and drove them out. The aggressor nations of our day have left no doubt that they are the enemies of God and the Bible. That these nations intend to include the whole world in their ruthless conquest is no longer denied."

The Apostle Paul exhorts us to be subject to the powers that be, not only in the technicalities of the law, but in real loyalty. When the government representatives came to me and explained that our Georgia plant was the only one in the south equipped to fill this large shell order and that they especially desired our co-operation because we are located both comparatively safe from attack and near the Birmingham steel mills, I felt it was right and proper to comply with their request, although I should much rather build our regular peacetime machinery."

Total German Occupation
Believed NearHitler Representative
Expected in Vichy to Talk to Petain

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—The fate of conquered France's Vichy government and possible total Nazi occupation of her soil was believed here Monday to depend on how the Axis takes the week-end upheaval in the cabinet of Philip Benin.

Otto Abetz, Hitler's representative, was expected in Vichy Monday to talk to Petain.

Berlin's approval of the ouster of Pierre Laval as vice-premier and foreign minister may hinge on what the French chief of state, Petain, tells Abetz.

Sources here said Laval, first reported under guard at his home, now is rumored a prisoner at Chateau de Felleville along with republican prisoners who face "war guilt" charges as the impending Rion trials which Laval himself advocated.

Authorized sources in Berlin said that the Laval dismissal came as a surprise and that until the German government has been fully informed of what it means, the German press will not even report that Laval is out.

A special reason for Germany's reserve, observers said, is that France has made only a truce with Germany, and peace has not yet been re-established.

Fears that Germany eventually occupy all of France stem from Petain's reported refusal to let Germany send troops through unoccupied France to aid Italian forces in Libya and Greece.

No Road Through France

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—France's chief of state, Marshal Petain, was reported Monday to have rejected a German request for permission to send Nazi soldiers through unoccupied France to a French port to sail for Italian Libya, in North Africa. Reports from the French capital, Vichy, said the request was made recently by German authorities.

The same sources said Petain refused the request, made through Pierre Laval before his removal as French vice premier, on the grounds that the only port through which such troops could board Italian transports secretly would be the Toulon naval base.

The marshal, it was said, previously had turned down Laval's suggestion that French naval bases, including Toulon, be made available for Axis use.

Petain and a majority of his ministers were said to have considered the German move an Axis attempt to gain a foothold on the French Mediterranean bases.

The Germans, it was reported, sounded out Laval while he still was "No. 2 man" in France, in an effort to find means of getting aid to the Italians, without passing through Italy. It was feared passage of troops through Premier Mussolini's country to help Italian forces in Greece and Africa would have a bad effect on Italian morale.

No Sympathy for Laval

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—Anxious French leaders acted quickly Sunday to consolidate their new Laval-less government with some apparently fearful all France. To observers outside, however, any action seemed unlikely for the present.

(Heavily censored reports from Vichy announced Chief of State Petain had announced plans for organizing a consultative assembly.)

Travelers reported a general feeling of relief over Laval's dismissal but said there was no apparent change in public apathy over the Vichy government.

YESTERDAY, Mr. Bailey is overcome by another Wes. Wes, trying to save some of the house furnishings, the house is doomed. As a result, Wes, her home burn, she clings to Wes.

LONA GOES RIDING

CHAPTER XXV

BECAUSE the road from the Rocking R Ranch swerved right by the University stables, Wesley thought to stop by there. He saw the horse wrangler, a friendly fellow, already out working a young filly even though it was but little after dawn.

"Morning, Dr. York," the man greeted. "You been to the fire?"

"Yes, Tip, thought I'd drop by and tell you. Whole house burned. No one hurt much, though."

The man frowned in sympathy. "Miss Ronica home? Glad she wasn't trapped or something, and her folks."

"She has only a father. Mother died years ago. Both were home, both all right now. They have moved into the cowboy bunk shack until they can rebuild. Other ranchers had brought in beds and things even before the fire died down. Just like the Baileys were poor folks."

The wrangler nodded. "That's how come I like the west, Mr. York. Folks are democratic out here. People don't see no money line. What'd the Baileys have to say?"

Wesley smiled a bit. "Ronica was overwhelmed. Cried like a little girl, although of course the fire itself had upset her tremendously. Tried to say thanks, and choked up. Well, I haven't had any sleep myself, Tip; I'll be going. What're you up at daybreak for? No riders this early."

Wes had stepped on his starter and had the lever in low gear; but at that name, he looked at the wrangler again. "Huh?"

"Sure. Early bird, that gal. She taken a good horse and lit out before daylight. Said she aimed to do some painting, or something. Had her a big package; paints and brushes, I reckon."

"What sort of package was it, Tip?"

"Why, uh, sort of square, Dr. York. Roped up, with a rope handle. Gawky thing to tie on. Heavy, too. Had to fasten it on her saddle horn. But she don't mean no harm, I reckon, even if she is a student. She's a right party."

"Oh, no, Tip! I'm sure not. I, uh—well, to tell you the truth, we're pretty good friends, and—well, I like to ride so—" the members of their Girl Scout Troop No. 6, which has recently been organized. Eight of the girls have passed their "tenderfoot" tests and are working on the second class test. The others are expected to pass

Tip grinned. "I git it, Doc! You git outen your car, if you want to. I c'n have another horse saddled up quicker'n a owl c'n hoot!"

DOWN trail horse 10 minutes later, Wesley told himself that he was being foolish again. Why had he acted on impulse to follow Lona Montoya a second time? What business was this of his? True, the secret cache in Rainbow Canyon needed explaining, but—

He refused to consider it all "none of his business." Too many mysterious things had come to his attention of late. As he rode he sort of recapitulated them again. They still didn't dovetail but they held a mounting importance in his mind, individually and collectively.

To the group of unexplained events now was the matter of last night's fire—that, also, was a mystery. It had no logical relationship with Lona's strange doings, or with Andre Girardeau's meeting Lona in clandestine fashion, or with Andre's apparent love making to Ronica, or with the five Americanized Japanese Ronica had helped capture in strange gun battle. These things had no earthly connection at all, that he could see.

And yet—strange incidents have a habit of collecting in a fellow's mind; they just seemed to congregate in Wesley's consciousness, and he mulled them around there.

Before he left his friend Tip he had, with careful casualness, borrowed Tip's pistol and his rifle as well. Tip had joshed him, but Wes explained that Lona Montoya liked to shoot and they just might get in some practice cracking at jack-rabbits and gophers and prairie marmots.

He took the rifle from its saddle scabbard now, to inspect it. It was a powerful thing which Tip used to get deer and bear in full. Wes saw that it was loaded. A quick flip of the wrist and he could have it in action.

The pistol was a type more familiar to him. It was a new high-powered automatic, shooting .22 calibre long-rifle shells. The cartridge clip in the handle held 10 rounds but the barrel was empty. Holding the handle in his left hand, he jerked back the carriage with his right thumb and forefinger, thus pumping the first cartridge into chamber, ready to fire.

He had no idea what he expected to do with these guns. He had just wanted them. Something told him that the secret cache in Rainbow had been put there by men who would kill on the slightest provocation.

"On the Long Tide" by Krey is One of New Books at County Library

Laura Krey wrote a magnificent story of Texas in the days of Reconstruction. Behind it lay a finer story still: the story of the birth of Texas itself. "On the Long Tide" tells of the men and women who "tempted the forest's unbroken silence, braved the prowling Indian, opened and subdued the earth." It tells how a small group of Texans gained their freedom against incredible odds and won a vast territory from the domination of Mexico and Spain. These events occurred just a century ago. Never have they been brought so vividly back to life or made so vividly so significant.

Beginning with an interview at Monticello between the hero, young Jeffrey Festress and his cousin, Thomas Jefferson, the action passes to Nashville, to Horse Shoe Bend, to New Orleans, to Mexico and to Texas, and introduces a brilliant group of characters, all of whom are presented as human beings rather than as heroes of history. Here is no cross-section of the American past, but a unique story of a unique civilization compounded of ruggedness and culture, of wisdom and danger, and of the sort of joyful faith that takes the impossible in its stride.

Army was known to be planning bombing tests in that area, and that a landing field had been set aside on the desert for temporary army use, all seemed to add up to something. Maybe, with that cache of clothing and canteens and guns, that powerful two-way radio outfit—

He didn't draw any pat conclusions. He just rode on. Soon he had to be extra cautious lest he ride too fast and overtake Lona. If Lona were riding with a bulky box tied to her saddle, she wouldn't be riding very fast, he reflected. And what, come to think of it was in her box? Something to add to the secret cache? What would it be?

PLAIN curiosity, driven by a mounting sense of responsibility in view of all that he knew, caused Wesley finally to plan a definite spying attempt on Lona. Again, said he, he would hide his horse before entering the canyon, then conceal himself and watch for her on foot. When she left the canyon cave, and when any other person with her there departed, he would go again to the cave and investigate. He felt this was the very least he should do. And the safest.

He had no more than reached that decision, however, when a motion caught his alert eye.

The motion was not on the ground, not amid the Spanish daggers or the mesquite trees or the cacti or the rocks, but was an extraordinary whirling black spot that lifted up into the sky itself. He reined his horse in automatically.

"An autogiro!" he breathed.

"One of the new Border Patrol planes!"

He stared at the fantastic thing. Hovering near the ground, maneuvering like some gigantic hummingbird dipping into this blossom and that, the ship dropped to earth a half mile ahead, stayed a minute or two, rose almost straight up, then dropped down near him.

This time, though, it did not touch earth. Apparently the two men in it recognized him, for they just waved a greeting and lifted on away, its queer horizontal propeller whirling. He thought one of the occupants was Inspector Star of the Border Patrol, whom Ronica Bailey had helped capture five Japanese a few weeks ago.

He stared at the plane in awe for some five minutes—and when he turned down the Rainbow Canyon trail again he saw Lona Montoya riding back toward him.

to shoulder with many of my old friends in the sports world in this fight against infantile paralysis. The people throughout the world of sports—athletes, coaches, promoters, the sports writers and the great host of sports fans—all have been noted for the generosity and the eagerness with which they are always ready to lend a helping hand to the less fortunate.

"Sportsmen always bat high in the league of kind-heartedness. You can be sure that there will never be any batting slump as they step into this contest against the body-maiming infantile paralysis. We will do our part to 'Help the Youngster Around Our Own Corner'."

Grantland Rice welcomed Farley into the fight, lauding the latter's acceptance of the Sports Events Committee chairmanship:

"There isn't anybody more respected or better liked by sports writers, fans and athletes than is Farley. His great ability at organization and his country-wide popularity will be most helpful in rallying the entire sports world to this battle against infantile paralysis. Jim is going to mean a great deal to us."

Mr. Farley will organize a committee of outstanding men and women in sports to urge and sponsor sports events from coast to coast. His committee will work in cooperation with Mr. Rice's Sports Council and with the various state, county and city chairmen of the Birthday committees.

One half of the funds raised by sports events will be given to the chairman of the local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for the care of local infantile paralysis patients. The other half will be turned over to the National Foundation by the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, for use in the nation wide fight against the crippling malady.

Mr. Farley, a great athlete in his youth, has never lost his love of sports. Among his countless friends is everyone who is anyone in the sports world. He made his first long strides toward national fame through his intelligent, humane administration as New York State Athletic Commission Chairman. Recently, he was reported as possible purchaser of the far-flung New York Yankee baseball empire and fans, writers, and players are rooting for him.

British Go Into Libya

Italians Strongly Defend Salum 3 Days, Nights

IRE —(P)—Vanguards of British army in the western desert are across the border of Italian territory, a communiqué reported Monday at the start of Britain's second day of the Egyptian war.

The Italians were said to be still holding strongly defended positions at Salum, Egyptian port, where heavy fighting has been going on for three days and three nights.

Supporting the land offensive RAF bombers flew through dirty weather to blast Italian bases in Africa and made a raid on Naples, Italy where five direct hits were reported on a concentration of cruisers. The British did not claim any direct hits on battleships lying nearby.

The Italian high command admitted Sunday one medium-sized battleship was damaged and 50 crewmen were injured, and a smaller craft sunk.

The Libyan ports of Derna, Tobruk and Bardia were objectives of the British RAF, with fierce fires blazing at Bardia.

After fighting Sunday almost blindly through dust storms, British forces were said to be forging ahead in the Salum-Fort Capuzzo sector.

The British communiqué said bad weather persisted, with poor visibility.

The rain may impede but is not expected to stop the advance.

Military circles said the British wanted to keep the Italians on the run. The advance is expected to slow down in any case because of "mopping up" operations and the extended communication lines.

Rome-Greek Attacks Reported

ROME —(P)—Bitter fighting in Libya and Albania against severe British and Greek attacks was reported Monday by the high command.

British attacks along the Libyan frontier were said to have been made under bombardment of Italian bombers with heavy casualties.

The high command's communiqué said Greek attacks along the Albanian front were repulsed with considerable losses on both sides.

An intensive campaign to reinforce civilian morale throughout northern Italy including the country's industrial zone was under way following a conference held by the Fascist party's secretary and provincial chiefs at Forli, Mussolini's home city.

Although Petain still is popular—even more since the week-end shake-up—the French in the street was said generally to regard his government only as a makeshift until the Axis war with Britain is over.

Return to Paris of the remains of "L'Aiglon," Napoleon's son who died more than a century ago in Vienna, appeared to hold the spark of dissension not only between Laval and Petain but, possibly, between the Vichy government and Germany as well.

Laval was said to have warned the Vichy cabinet Friday that Adolf Hitler personally having ordered that "L'Aiglon's" remains be sent to Paris to lie beside the body of his father under the gilded dome of Les Invalides considered it a great gesture of friendship to the French.

Laval, these reports said, had indicated to the Germans that Petain would attend the ceremonies in Paris. His insistence on that point was the incident which exploded Petain's patience and, with the help of Interior Minister Marcel Peyroux's police, Petain ousted Laval from the government.

As a result, the build-up for the ceremony was swamped, not only in the foreign press, but also in the French domestic press by the week-end events at Vichy.

Petain was not in Paris and neither was Hitler, although there had been reports the fuhrer planned to be present himself, side by side with the old marshal.

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

Stunt Girls Amazed — All They Do in New Picture Is Sit Around and Drink Beer

HOLLYWOOD — Dressed in their own western outfits, 10 Hollywood's 14 stunt girls dismounted from coupes and roadsters at Paramount and headed for Stage 1. They found the set now in use for "Las Vegas Nights" is a slick western cabaret with everything from Tommy Dorsey and band to a gambling room.

"Guess we're in a fight scene, kids," said one of the stunt specialists. "Maybe we gotta do a Brodie off the balcony into the bass drum."

"Or into a Martini," said another. "Like that dive I did down at—oh, here's the director. Hello, Mr. Murphy: what's our stunt?"

"No stunt," declared the boss. "We just needed some good, healthy-looking girls who seem to belong in western clothes, so we called you. We'll want you about two weeks on this night club thing. You'll sit at the tables and drink a little beer and maybe dance with cowboys now and then."

Two weeks! — $35 a day—sitting around listening to Tommy Dorsey! No fights, no falls; and the dancing cowboys don't wear spurs!

"Santa Claus!" murmured a wiry little redhead, who looked as if she had like to kiss Mr. Murphy.

"Let me sit down," said a tall brunette who specializes in riding horses off cliffs. "I feel a little faint."

Disaster—To the Chickens

Presently they were all sitting down, and with nothing more strenuous to do than bend an elbow, they began talking about stunts they have done. Several of the group were passengers in the spectacular plane crash sequence in "Foreign Correspondent."

For the shot of actual impact (later speeded up) a plane full of professional acrobats was hauled to the top of a steep incline and turned

Free Show for School Children

Hundreds of Students Expected Here Friday

6,000 tickets will be passed out to school children in all Hempstead county and surrounding territory schools for the annual free Christmas show at the Saenger theater Friday, December 20.

This free show, given each year at the Saenger theater, is made possible by the Malco Theater Inc. and merchants of Hope who bear the expense. Anyone not having tickets may get them by applying at the Chamber of Commerce office at city hall.

The theater will open at 8:30 Friday

Chief feminine stunner in "North West Mounted Police" was Frances Kellogg, who said her biggest scare in that was driving a buggy at a hard run through a stockade gate and just missing some Indians. In the height of the excitement she heard a strange cry, saw feathers flying, had the sickening realization she was running over something, and figured she must have decapitated the chief. Turned out to be chickens, though, which the prop man had released at the last minute for atmosphere.

A Wild Ride in Hoopskirts

Secret of spectacular stunts is to do things with the narrowest possible margin of safety. Frances Miles and Ione Reed have just finished some automobile thrills for Hal Roach's "Topper Returns," and Miss Reed can tell you her margin on one evening corner was precisely the thickness of her trousers. While Miss Miles drove, she crouched low on a running board on the outside of a turn. The car went around on two wheels and the rough anti-skid paving tore off the seat of Miss Reed's pants!

They say, too, that Elaine Goodwin put on an interesting act during "Gone With the Wind," when she and Stunt Yakima Canute doubled for Vivien Leigh and Clark Gable in that wild flight from burning Atlanta. On the first try, Canute was thrown from the wagon and the reins went with him. Miss Goodwin wasn't going to just sit there and be killed, and so—hoopskirts and all, while the costume lasted—she leaped to the back of one of the frantic horses, inched her way forward on the harness, and rode out the runaway.

morning with the first show scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock. Four shows will be shown during the day, the last closing at 6 o'clock. Students are urged to attend early and avoid crowding during the afternoon.

Marlbrook Has Cotton Xmas

160 Club Women From 16 Clubs Attend Event

The annual Christmas meeting of the county council of Home Demonstration Clubs of Hempstead county was held at the Marlbrook community church December 11 with the Marlbrook club acting as hostess.

One hundred sixty Home Demonstration club women attended with greenery, holly, mistletoe mingled with cotton, brought out the Christmas spirit. A huge Christmas tree stood in one corner decorated in pop corn strings, red paper, cotton and all type of homemade cotton toys.

Mrs. Shirley Stuart, the county council president, presided. A beautiful Christmas invocation was given by Mrs. C. R. Willard, President of the Marlbrook Club. Welcome was given by Mrs. A. H. Wade, of Marlbrook. Response was given by Mrs. Brunson of Hopewell. Miss Martha Earle McWilliams as pianist. The club enjoyed singing all the old Christmas carols. A cotton poem was given by Mrs. Troy Wade of the Marlbrook club. A Christmas poem was read by Amelia Jo Huskey, young daughter of one of the Sweet Home club members. A Christmas gift demonstration was given by the Home Demonstration club. Response was given by Mrs. Shirley Stuart, county council president. This demonstration consisted of fifty odd cotton articles.

Mrs. Stuart brought this message from the state council meeting, held in Conway in September, back to her club women. The Home Demonstration Club sponsors Cotton Christmas.

A Christmas picnic lunch was enjoyed by the club on the lawn of the church. After lunch while the club was singing "Jingle Bells" a big fat Santa Claus came to see all the boys and girls and the women that were present at the meeting. From the Christmas tree everyone present received a cotton Christmas gift.

A bonfire service was held on the back lawn of the church by the Club women. This service was also brought from the state council meeting that was held in September.

The council adjourned to meet with Rocky Mount for their March council meeting.

Wildcats Show Good Record

Northwestern Puts on Fourth Quarter Drive

AP Feature Service

CHICAGO — Northwestern football fans don't claim any championship for their team—unless there is one awarded for pure fight.

Lynn Waldorf, head coach of the Wildcats, says the squad which won six games and lost two was the most spirited he has handled in his six years at Northwestern. The record book provides backing for his opinion.

Beaten only twice—by Michigan and Minnesota—the Wildcats showed an offense that rolled up 170 points. But what Waldorf likes to point out is that only one team scored on Northwestern in the last period. On the other hand, the Wildcats made 71 points in fourth-quarter surges.

"That shows," Waldorf explains, "the way those kids carried the fight right down to the final gun. It was a good club. It didn't have the reserve strength of a great eleven but it made up for that on various occasions with great spirit."

Typical of Northwestern's scrap was the exhibition against Michigan. Howitzer Harmon and his mates had rolled up a disheartening 20-6 lead going into the fourth quarter when the Wildcats began to claw. They pulled up to within tying distance with a second touchdown and came banging back toward another in the closing minutes, missing a first down on the Michigan seven by a scant foot.

Waldorf is particularly proud of his line, "a great one when one considers that it's very light in spots." Al Buthers, end, weighs only 165 pounds.
